

■ GERBER TECHNOLOGY REDEFINES MASS PRODUCTION WITH LAUNCH OF NEXT-GENERATION CUTTING ROOM

At its recent annual technology conference, Gerber Technology claimed it is revolutionising the flexible materials processing industry with the launch of its end-to-end solution for mass production.

The connected platform features the new Atria digital cutting solution, and the October 2020 release of AccuMark 2D and 3D, AccuNest and AccuPlan.

The Atria digital cutting room leverages Industry 4.0 and IoT to seamlessly integrate with Gerber's pattern-design, cut-planning and nesting solutions, which connects the entire mass production process from CAD to the cut room.

Gerber's latest product releases are what the company says manufacturers need to succeed in the post-Covid world, by integrating data management, improving efficiencies, reducing material waste, optimising nesting and cutting production costs.

Gerber maintains that this intuitive solution will be a gamechanger for the furniture market, as it utilises powerful algorithms to eliminate errors, reduce costs and ensure data integrity at every point in the process.

Apparel manufacturer, Lesato, has also seen a major improvement in cut quality. The Atria has allowed it to significantly increase its ply height while cutting faster and with absolute precision.

■ SALONE DEL MOBILE 2021 HAS BEEN POSTPONED UNTIL SEPTEMBER

After continued uncertainty over the feasibility of a large-scale April event, organizers have pushed back the fair to next falls the first COVID-19 wave crested in Europe, it became clear that the design world's signature annual event—Salone del Mobile—would have to be postponed.

Ultimately, the springtime Milan-set fair and its accompanying design week had to be cancelled all together. Now, approximately eight months later, the 2021 iteration of Salone del Mobile is being postponed until September of that year.
